

BEST PRACTICES

1. Title of the practice. EK PAUDHA, EK SANKALP

Objectives of the practice: The objective of this practice is to instill a sense of environmental awareness among the faculty and students of the institution. It is a tool for training them to be sensitive towards environmental concerns and taking initiatives for remedying them.

The Context: Through this practice, teachers and students get an opportunity to restore the ecological imbalance in nature by taking measures such as afforestation and reforestation from the grassroots level. They get a chance to reverse the damage done by man to the planet, especially soil erosion and pollution, which can only be minimized by planting more trees.

Methodology Adopted: The methodology adopted for this practice is a simple yet effective one. Each faculty member is supposed to plant a sapling on his /her birthday and vow to protect it, ensuring that it grows into a tree.

Problems and resources required: This practice does not face any obstacles as it is an internal practice adopted by the teachers and does not require any special equipment for execution.

2. Title of the practice: Book Bank for BPL and needy students

Objectives of the practice: The objective of this practice is to provide students with readily available access to quality education irrespective of their financial background and other external considerations.

The context: Through this practice, we aim to motivate meritorious students, especially from economically and socially weaker sections, to perform to their fullest potential by providing informational and educational assistance to them.

Methodology of the practice: The book bank is maintained as a separate section in the library and is supplemented by previous year books, that have either been used by students or faculty, that are deposited by teachers of all subjects, for reference purposes by students.

Problems and resources: One problem that us classic faced in the maintenance of the book bank is the unavailability of certain books that are needed by students of specific subjects.
