ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I take this opportunity to thank the College Govt. Degree College Nagrota Bagwan for allowing the students to go for a field trip to Dadh village on 22th February 2024 conducted by the students.

I want to pass my regards to the entire Department for their participation in the trip. My special thanks go to the head of department of geography Dr. Nikesh Sharma for only making the prior arrangement for the trip but also for accompanying us and provide guidance, moral support and proper understanding of what we were taught by explaining further. The trip was very successful and enjoyable because of your company.

I thank all the people of the Dadh village that we met during the survey who provided useful knowledge about their Occupation, Education, Social and Economic life.

I extend my appreciation to my fellow students for their cooperation disciple and adhering to the instructions who also accompanied me during the whole survey and brought valuable information on the basis of which this report has been completed successfully.

Such an arrangement is called Joint Family or Extended Family. There is an emotional bond between more than one or two generations to keep the family united in all types of upcoming critical situations. Dadh village nearly has one-fourth (27 per cent) were joint families and remaining three-fourth (73 per cent) consists nuclear families.

The term Family is used to represent the total number of persons who are living in the same dwelling comprising the family unit. The family size in Dadh village is categorized into 3 groups namely, small (up to 4), medium (up to 7) and large (more than 7). Nearly two-fourth (42 per cent) families were found under the small families, again two-fourth (43 per cent) comprises medium size and remaining one-fifth which is about (15 per cent) comes with the villagers it was revealed that the Dadh village is a partially male dominant society, but not in the whole village because in some houses women owned the position of the head of the family.
